This certainty is doubly assured by the fact of the adhesion of the TARBOX faction to Butlerism and the general concentration and solidification of the foreign-born vote in support of the BUTLER ticket. Deserted by these two elements, the "Old Guard" of the Massachusetts Democracy, as they delight to call themselves, will not be able to muster a corporal's grantl guard.

Thus it is made apparent that Democracy thrives best in the midst of ignorance. Indeed, it is what that party feeds npon. Where ignorance, vice and crime do most prevail, there the Democratic party has its thriftiest growth. This bare fact teaches THE Young Republicans of New York the lesson that the interests of a Republic who belted the Council nomination the which can only exist and thrive in the other day seem to have subsided. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS has at last audience on the receipt of his card. This flirted himself out of the Republican line, effigy when he should return to the land of of the Republican party for years. He is undeserving of confidence or even recognition as a Republican, for he has shown himself to be an arrogant dictator and a contemptible marplot, who is neither to be taken advantage of his position as editor of a popular journal, which has heretofore shown strong Republican sympathies and proclivities that are in accord with the understood principles and feelings of its pub-THE Louisville Courier-Journal substan. lishers and proprietors, to play the part of tially admits that Governor BLACKBURN is the dictator and betrayer. Then, as a true and reliable Republican and an honorable man, he was bound by its decision-but his conduct now indicates that he is neither. In the scale of party integrity he falls far below KELLY. The difference between them is, that KELLY bolted before the nomination was made, and CURTIS afterward, though a member of the convention, and had permitted Mr. Cornell to be nominated without a pect of a preserved Union and a presperous protest to the convention against it, or an intimation to the body of his defection. It has submitted too long already to this man's arrogance and assent of the National Democratic commit-tee, and is being managed by the most ambitious and unscrupulous of the Bourbon enders. Besides this, its success is imperatively required to perpetuate Hourbon domination in that section. If the people are eft to themselves they will split up into factions at first, and finally into larger combinations by which the solid front of the electoral vote of the Southern States might here and there be broken, and this plan has been majared for the express purpose of preventing such a result.

THE suggestion that General GRANT shall be elected to be mayor of Galena revives a reminiscence of an alleged practical joke on ex-President TYLER by his old Whig neighbors in Virginia. They elected him to be Road Commissioner. To their surprise he accepted the office and straightway began to exercise the almost unlimited powers then vested in the office by the laws of Virginia, which enabled him to call into service on the highways as many able-bodied slaves as he wanted. He soon had hundreds of them at work, and kept ordering out slaves until he had supplied the county gone to meet GRANT. The Government is with admirable roads. But long before he stopped, the neighbors realized bitterly that the joke was on them. The New York Mail, alluding to this historical incident, pays General GRANT the compliment of remarking that if he would move to that city and accept the mayoralty, "New York might get clean streets and orderly policemen." Therein the Mail gives the GRANT boom a boost unwittingly, for it admits his qualities of civil administration. But the Mail is always fair in its treatment of him -as fair as its fear of his reelection to the Presidency will permit it to be.

A SOUTHERN Democrat was interviewed by a Philadelphia Times correspondent a few days since, and in referring to the next Presidential campaign, freed his burthened mind as follows:

They can't stop the GRANT boom. They spoutaneous movement and the politician, cannot stop it. It may be true—it likely is true-that BLAINE and SHERMAN are combin ing or pooling their issues as against GRANT, with the promise one to the other that which, ever is nominated the other shall be well treated in case of success. But it won't work

THE Indianapolis Journal says: The statement that Scuator VOORHEES called on General GRANT in San Francisco was a mistake. Mr. VOORHEES is still pursuing his sad search for an area of depression in Ohio, lifting up his voice and refusing to be comforted.
